Missouri online legal resources are not official.
Despite the Missouri Revisor of Statutes' concern to publish an online version of state statutes capable of certification as required under section 3.090 of the Missouri Revised Statutes, it appears only the print version of the state statutes are certified and entitled to treatment as prima facie evidence of the law. Print copies of the other resources investigated here are the only official versions.

Missouri is not addressing the authentication of online legal resources.
The state is not addressing authentication at this time. It does not appear that there are any future plans to address computer-based methods for certifying legal materials.

Has the state eliminated the print publication of any of these titles in favor of online only since the 2007 report? Missouri has not eliminated its print publications of the administrative code, administrative register, statutory code, session laws, and court opinions. These resources are also available online.

Has the state enacted legislation guaranteeing the public's permanent access to state online government information since the 2007 report? There have not been any changes since the 2007 report to indicate that the state has enacted legislation guaranteeing the public's permanent access to state online government information.

Have courts in your state adopted a medium neutral citation system since the 2007 report? The courts have not adopted a medium neutral citation system at this time.

Have there been any other significant changes to the 2007 state summary? At the present time there have not been any significant changes to the 2007 state summary.
