

North Dakota

2007 Report and 2009-10 Update by Ted Smith, North Dakota Supreme Court

OFFICIAL STATUS X No change since the 2007 report	AUTHENTICATION X No change since the 2007 report
--	---

North Dakota online legal resources are not official.
While the online versions of the administrative code, statutory code and session laws are not official, the Assistant Director of the North Dakota Legislative Council, in a telephone conversation, indicated that the online versions of those resources are more current and accurate than the print official versions. The Legislative Council, which consists of seventeen legislators and a substantial staff, provides a variety of administrative services for the North Dakota Legislative Assembly, including overseeing publication of legislative and administrative sources of law.

North Dakota is not addressing the authentication of online legal resources.
Authentication methods involving technology are not being considered at this time.

Has the state eliminated the print publication of any of these titles in favor of online only since the 2007 report? North Dakota has not eliminated any print publication of primary law since the 2007 report.

Has the state enacted legislation guaranteeing the public's permanent access to state online government information since the 2007 report? North Dakota has not enacted legislation guaranteeing permanent public access to state online government information since the 2007 report.

Have courts in your state adopted a medium neutral citation system since the 2007 report? North Dakota has not yet adopted medium neutral citation format.

Have there been any other significant changes to the 2007 state summary? There have been no significant changes in North Dakota since the 2007 Survey.