

Law Library Journal Centennial Feature

AALL Special Interest Section Recommended Reading Lists***

¶1 To celebrate the centennial volume of Law Library Journal, each of the Special Interest Sections was invited to contribute a “recommended reading list” to this final issue of volume 100. The goal was for the SIS to put together a list of articles from Law Library Journal’s first century that it would suggest as reading for its members. Eight of the Special Interest Sections responded to the invitation, and their selections follow in alphabetical order by the name of the SIS.

¶2 The invitation intentionally left the format choice open, and as you will see, this led to a number of different approaches. What they have in common, though, is that all resulted in bibliographies that highlight the wide variety of topics LLJ has covered over the years, and that demonstrate the continued relevance of articles published decades ago.—The Editor

---

* All articles in this LLJ Centennial Feature © American Association of Law Libraries, 2008.

Foreign, Comparative and International Law SIS*

Introduction

¶1 In celebration of Law Library Journal's centennial, the following list of articles on topics in international, foreign, or comparative law was prepared; it is a kaleidoscopic presentation of past, current, and emerging issues that have influenced and are still impacting international law. The FCIL-SIS has an interesting history, which illustrates in itself the growth of interest in the subject matter of the section. The Foreign, Comparative and International Law SIS was created in 1985, but it had existed as an AALL committee since 1947, albeit under varying names.<sup>1</sup>

¶2 The excellent quality of all the articles written over the period made any selection a particularly challenging process, and it was decided instead to include all articles on the subject. It is notable that established legal scholars and holders of chairs or named professorships, such as Thomas E. Carbonneau<sup>2</sup> and John E.C. Brierley,<sup>3</sup> have been among our contributors. One general trend that may be noted briefly here is a change in the focus of the articles over time: moving from collections, and particularly the difficulty of acquiring foreign materials, to topical international and foreign legal bibliography and legal systems in the abstract. Finally, a significant number of the articles on foreign law focus on Canadian law, and this should not be surprising, given that in 1963 Canadian librarians formed an association chapter within AALL as a prelude to their emergence, in 1970, as an independent association.<sup>4</sup>

¶3 To add additional interest to the list, a very rough citation analysis was undertaken. We wondered how often articles had been cited in other legal and law-related journals. Articles were located through HeinOnline, LexisNexis, Westlaw, and the Index to Legal Periodicals and Books, both current and retrospective, which covers the entire publication run of Law Library Journal from 1908 onwards. The citation analysis was performed utilizing Westlaw's KeyCite and the LexisNexis's Shepard's features. In addition, Academic Search Premier's Cited References was used for cross-checking purposes, as well as in an attempt to retrieve citations for the older articles; however the number of target journals on law is small in that database. HeinOnline also provides a feature indicating articles that cite any particular article, and this was used as well. The limitations of the

---

* Compiled by Marylin J. Raisch, Associate Law Librarian for International and Foreign Law, Georgetown Law Library, Washington, D.C., and Yasmin Morais, Library Resident, Georgetown Law Library, Washington, D.C. Special thanks to Richard Tran and Rita E. Mutyaba, both J.D. candidates at Georgetown Law, for assistance with the preparation of this bibliographic essay.

1. See Am. Assoc. of Law Libraries, Foreign, Comparative and International Law SIS, http://www.aallnet.org/sis/sis.asp?code=COMMITTEE/SIS\_F (last visited Aug. 14, 2008).
2. Samuel P. Orlando Distinguished Professor of Law, Penn State Dickinson School of Law, University Park, Pennsylvania.
3. Former Wainwright Professor of Civil Law, McGill University, Montreal, Canada.
4. Janine Miller, The Canadian Association of Law Libraries: AALL Shares a History of Partnership with Its Neighbor from the North, AALL SPECTRUM, Mar. 2005, at 16, 17.

databases' citation analyses are due to coverage in the analysis feature, resulting in a (not surprising) lack of citation data for older articles. The number of citations found is indicated in parentheses at the end of the bibliographic citation. Articles are in alphabetical order.

Articles

- Alford, Duncan E. "European Union Legal Materials: A Guide for Infrequent Users." Law Library Journal 97 (2005): 49–76. (1 citation)
- Avalos, Francisco. "An Overview of the Legal System of the Aztec Empire." Law Library Journal 86 (1994): 259–76.
- Avalos, Francisco. "The Legal Personality of the Colonial Period of Mexico." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 393–400. (4 citations)
- Axel-Lute, Paul. "Speed of Publication of Statutes and Regulations in the United Kingdom, Canada, and the United States." Law Library Journal 80 (1998): 415–27.
- Azzam, Issam. "The Law in the Near and Middle East. Basic Sources in English." Law Library Journal 57 (1964): 234–40.
- Baade, Hans W. "Civilising (and Civilianizing) Functions of International Law Librarians." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 565–70.
- Baker, John. H. "Unprinted Sources of English Legal History." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 302–13.
- Bensman, Stephen J. "Soviet Bibliographic Control over Legal Literature: A Historical Bibliography." Law Library Journal 69 (1976): 232–46.
- Bernal, Marie-Louise H. "Reference Sources in International Law." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 427–35.
- Bessette, Irene. "French Civil Law System since 1804." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 336–53.
- Bitner, Harry, et al. "The Common Market and the Law Library." Law Library Journal 56 (1963): 363–72.
- Blaustein, Albert P. "Vietnam: Current Legal Bibliography." Law Library Journal 61 (1968): 20–22.
- Blaustein, Albert P. "African Legal Periodicals: A Bibliography." Law Library Journal 59 (1966): 93–96.
- Blender, Dorothea. "Common Market Reports." Law Library Journal 56 (1963): 379–401.
- Bluh, Pamela. "The Acquisition and Handling of Foreign Legal Serials: The Practical Aspects." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 115–23.
- Borchard, Edwin M. "Recent Developments in International and Municipal Law." Law Library Journal 10 (1917): 21–24.

- Boulton, Eleanor. "Noting Up of Canadian Cases and Statutes." Law Library Journal 65 (1972): 19–32.
- Brierley, John E. C. "The Civil Law in North America: The Civil Law in Canada." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 159–69. (2 citations)
- Britt, Robert R. "The Japanese Legal System and International Trade: Up-to-Date Sources of Information in English." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 313–30. (2 citations)
- Brown, C. R. "Bibliography of Quebec or Lower Canada Laws." Law Library Journal 20 (1927): 90–108.
- Buckwalter, Robert L. "Preservation of Foreign Legal Materials. Preserving Legal Information for the Twenty-First Century: Toward a National Agenda." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 643–48.
- Callister, Paul D. "Law and Heidegger's Question Concerning Technology: Prolegomenon to Future Law Librarianship." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 285–305. (1 citation)
- Carbonneau, Thomas E. "The Survival of Civil Law in North America: The Case of Louisiana." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 171–76.
- "Check-List of Laws of Upper Canada, 1792–1818." Law Library Journal 1 (January 1908): 72–78.
- Chipman, F. E. "Australian Law Reports, Official and Otherwise." Law Library Journal 9 (1916): 62–71.
- Cohen, Philip F. "Publishing in International Law: History and Contemporary Analysis." Law Library Journal 71 (1978): 83–90.
- Cornish, Graham P. "The New United Kingdom Copyright Act and Its Implications for Libraries and Archives." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 51–59. (1 citation)
- Crews, Kenneth D. "Legal Deposit in Four Countries: Law and Library Services." Law Library Journal 80 (1988): 551–76.
- Csaky, Susan D. "Hungarian Legal Institutions and Their Publications: A Legal Bibliography with Translations and Annotations." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 490–513.
- Dauman, Alma R. "Publications of the European Economic Community." Law Library Journal 56 (1963): 373–78.
- Decugis, Henri. "The French Judiciary System." Law Library Journal 18 (1925): 68–71.
- Deiser, George F. "English Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 7 (1915): 73–78.
- Dull, Jack, Dan Fenno Henderson, and Tao-Tai Hsia. "Modern China and Japan: History, Politics and Law." Law Library Journal 66 (1973): 429–43.

- Eakins, W. George. "The Bibliography of Canadian Statute Law." Law Library Journal 1 (1908): 61–71.
- Eakins, W. George. "Bibliography of Canadian Statute Law, II." Law Library Journal 2 (1910): 65–75.
- Ellinger, Werner B. "Cataloging and Classification of Law in South American Libraries: A Report." Law Library Journal 43 (1950): 52–57.
- Evans, Luther H., and Joseph T. Vambery. "Documents and Publications of Contemporary International Governmental Organizations." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 338–62.
- Field, O. J. "Report of the Committee on Securing Latin American Laws." Law Library Journal 4 (1911): 7–15.
- Figueredo, Fernando J. "Acquisition of Latin American Legal Materials: A Burdensome Task." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 46–51.
- Flynn, Lauri R. "International Law Librarians: The Exchange Experience." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 721–26.
- Fox, James R. "A Guide to Austrian Legal Research." Law Library Journal 80 (1988): 99–113.
- Fraser, Joan. "A Subject Index for Canadian Federal Statutes: A Proposal Based on the New Index to the U.S. Code of Federal Regulations." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 634–71.
- Fruchtman, Gail H. "The History of the Los Angeles County Law Library." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 687–705. (2 citations)
- Gee, Pauline E. "Foreign Legal Periodicals: Births, Deaths and Changes since October, 1940." Law Library Journal 34 (1941): 345.
- Gee, Pauline E. "Foreign Legal Periodicals: Birth, Deaths and Changes Since October, 1939." Law Library Journal 33 (1940): 402–03.
- Germain, Claire. "Foreign Experiences Toward the Development of a National Legal Information Center." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–85): 675–94.
- Germain, Claire, and George S. Grossman. "Foreword: AALL Institute on International Law and Business." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 421–26.
- Germain, Claire M. "Current Research Sources in French Law." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 34–51. (1 citation)
- Germain, Claire M. "France: Libraries of Law and Librarians." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 235–44.
- Gilliam, Mary Cooper. "Problems in Foreign Legal Acquisitions." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 125–31.
- Goedan, Juergen Christoph. "Foreign and International Law Research Centers in West Germany: The Max Planck Institutes." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 464–81. (2 citations)

- Goldberg, Jolande E. "Library of Congress Classification System for German Law: A New Approach." Law Library Journal 74 (1981): 619–31.
- Gonzalez, Armando E. "The Role of Latin American Legal Material in the Social Science Research Library." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 52–64.
- Gordon, Edward. "Acquiring International Legal Materials: Some Things To Bear in Mind." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 476–83.
- Gorecki, Danuta M., and Arnold Wajenberg. "Canon Law: History, Sources and a Proposed Classification Scheme." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 381–402.
- Goulet, Jean. "The Quebec Legal System." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 354–81.
- Graham, Howard Jay. "The Rastells and the Printed English Law Book of the Renaissance." Law Library Journal 47 (1954): 6–25. (1 citation)
- "Guides to Foreign Law Literature. Extract from Report of the Librarian of Congress 1910–11." Law Library Journal 4 (1911): 35–36.
- Hellyer, Paul. "U.N. Documents in U.S. Case Law." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 73–86.
- Henderson, Edith G. "Legal Literature and the Impact of Printing on the English Legal Profession." Law Library Journal 68 (1975): 288–93. (1 citation)
- Heuline, Simone. "The Legal Collections of the United Nations Library." Law Library Journal 49 (1956): 244–49.
- Hoeflich, M. H. "A Seventeenth Century Roman Law Bibliography: Jacques Godefroy and His Bibliotheca Juris Civilis Romani." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 514–28.
- Hoeflich, M. H. "Bibliographical Perspectives on Roman and Civil Law." Law Library Journal 89 (1997): 41–54. (4 citations)
- Holden, William. "Gray's Inn and Its History." Law Library Journal 46 (1953): 137–40.
- Hollander, David. "Jewish Law for the Law Librarian." Law Library Journal 98 (2006): 219–52.
- Holman Weisbard, Phyllis. "Basic Books and Periodicals on Jewish Law: A Guide for Law Librarians." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 519–29. (1 citation)
- Hoyle, J. M. D. "Organization and Governance of the British Legal Profession." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 655–66. (1 citation)
- Hu, Robert Haibin. "A Guide to Resources on Careers in Foreign and International Law." Law Library Journal 93 (2001): 479–93.
- Ifebuzor, Christopher C. "Centralization Versus Decentralization of Law Libraries and Law Library Services in Nigerian Universities." Law Library Journal 80 (1988): 605–17.

- Jackson, Bernard S. "British Legal Education." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 667–78.
- James, Barbara G. "Vietnamese Law in English: A Selected Annotated Bibliography." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 461–98. (5 citations)
- Jeffries, John. "Online Legal Databases: France and the European Communities." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 237–51. (1 citation)
- Jeffries, John. "Law Librarianship in the United Kingdom: Preparation, the Profession, and the British and Irish Association of Law Librarians." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 679–90. (1 citation)
- Johnston, George A. "Canada's War and Emergency Legislation." Law Library Journal 35 (1942): 467–76.
- Kavass, Igor I. "International Business Transactions: A Guide to Research Sources." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 503–64. (1 citation)
- Kavass, Igor I. "United States Treaties and International Agreements: Sources of Publication and 'Legislative History' Documents." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 442–57.
- Kearley, Timothy. "International Law Book Prices." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 239–46. (1 citation)
- Kearley, Timothy. "German Division and Reunification, 1944–1990: An Overview via the Documents." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 1–12.
- Kearley, Timothy. "An American Researcher's Guide to European Communities Law and Legal Literature." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 52–97. (4 citations)
- Kearley, Timothy G. "Justice Fred Blume and the Translation of Justinian's Code." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 525–54.
- Kim-Prieto, Dennis C. "En la Tierra del Ciego, el Tuerto es Rey: Problems with Current English-Spanish Legal Dictionaries, and Notes Toward a Critical Comparative Legal Lexicography." Law Library Journal 100 (2008): 251–78.
- King, Donald B. "Legal Literature on International Human Rights." Law Library Journal 55 (1962): 111–17.
- Kleckner, Simone Marie. "Major Publications of the United Nations Office of Legal Affairs." Law Library Journal 74 (1981): 69–86. (1 citation)
- Landheer, Bartholomew. "Legal Bibliography and Legal History of the Netherlands." Law Library Journal 34 (1941): 39–45.
- Le May, Denis. "The Québec Legal System: An Overview." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 189–94. (1 citation)
- Leary, John C., Robert B. Downs, Earl Borgeson, David Parson, and William R. Roalfe. "Panel on Emerging Nations." Law Library Journal 57 (1964): 377–403.

- Leary, Margaret A. "Building a Foreign Law Collection at the University of Michigan Law Library, 1910–1960." Law Library Journal 94 (2002): 395–425. (2 citations)
- Leary, Margaret A. "International Executive Agreements: A Guide to the Legal Issues and Research Sources." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 1–11. (2 citations)
- Lee, Takika S. "Japanese Law: A Selective Bibliographical Guide." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 189–230.
- Lin, Katherina R., and Erin Murphy. "Reflections on a JX Reclassification Project." Law Library Journal 92 (2000): 459–66.
- Liu, Frank Y. "Legal Materials of the United States in the People's Republic of China." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 364–79.
- Logan, Robert G. "United Kingdom Legal Databases." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 269–82.
- Logan, Robert G. "British Legal Bibliography." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 691–712.
- Louis-Jacques, Lyonette. "Publications of Adolf Sprudz: 1953–2002." Law Library Journal 95 (2003): 339–346. (1 citation)
- Lukes, Frank. "An Introduction to Research on International Tax Agreements." Law Library Journal 66 (1973): 72–80.
- Lukes, Frank. "Library of International Operations." Law Library Journal 62 (1969): 206–07.
- Lukes, Frank. "Basic Legal Research and Sources on the Latin American Economic Integration." Law Library Journal 58 (1965): 270–87.
- Luo, Wei. "How to Find the Law of the People's Republic of China: A Research Guide and Selective Annotated Bibliography." Law Library Journal 88 (1996): 402–26. (4 citations)
- MacPherson, Lillian Bjarnason. "Indexing Canadian Legal Literature." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 489–504.
- Mahr, Theodore A. "An Introduction to Law and Law Libraries in India." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 91–128. (3 citations)
- Makdisi, John. "Islamic Law Bibliography." Law Library Journal 78 (1986): 103–89. (3 citations)
- Makdisi, John, and Marianne Makdisi. "Islamic Law Bibliography: Revised and Updated List of Secondary Sources." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 69–191. (5 citations)
- Marshall, Denis S. "An Introduction to Canadian Legal Research." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 465–88.

- Martens, Monica. "Creating a Supplemental Thesaurus to LCSH for a Specialized Collection: The Experience of the National Indian Law Library." Law Library Journal 98 (2006): 287–97.
- Mattar, Mohamed Y. "Trafficking in Persons: An Annotated Legal Bibliography." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 669–726. (4 citations)
- Matteucci, Mario. "The History of Unidroit and the Methods of Unification." Law Library Journal 66 (1973): 286–89.
- Mersky, Roy M., and Michael L. Richmond. "Legal Implications of the Arab Economic Boycott of the State of Israel: A Research Guide." Law Library Journal 71 (1978): 68–76. (1 citation)
- Milner, Alan. "The African Law Reports." Law Library Journal 61 (1968): 11–15.
- Miskin, Christine. "Research Techniques in British Legal Materials." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 713–21.
- Moys, Elizabeth M. "The Library of the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies, London." Law Library Journal 49 (1956): 23–30.
- Müller, Harald. "Legal Information Systems and Other Law-Related Databases in Germany, Austria and Switzerland." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 253–67.
- Musmanno, Michael Angelo. "Law Libraries in Italy." Law Library Journal 18 (1925): 59–68.
- Mwalimu, Charles. "A Bibliographic Essay of Selected Secondary Sources on the Common Law and Customary Law of English-Speaking Sub-Saharan Africa." Law Library Journal 80 (1988): 241–89.
- Nelson, David N. "Library of Congress Classification Schedule of Ancient and Medieval Indian Legal Literature." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 837–57.
- Nevin, Susanne. "Academic Law Libraries in Scandinavia." Law Library Journal 78 (1986): 697–710.
- Niebergall, Fred. "Office of Chief of U.S. Counsel for War Crimes Document Division: Brief Survey Concerning the Records of the War Crime Trials Held in Nuremberg, Germany." Law Library Journal 42 (1949): 87–90.
- Noel-Tod, Alex. "Collection Development in British Legal Materials." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 723–31.
- Orfield, Lester B. "Norway and International Law." Law Library Journal 61 (1968): 305–12.
- Otton, Philip Howard. "The British Judiciary and Court Organization." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 649–54.
- Paust, Jordan J. "Application of International Human Rights Standards by United States Courts." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 496–502. (2 citations)
- Pawloski, Barbara M. "Gaelic Law in Early and Medieval Ireland: A Bibliography." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 305–33. (1 citation)

- Pearse, Richard. "Library Open-Distribution Systems and Copyright Infringement in Canada and the United States." Law Library Journal 86 (1994): 399–443. (3 citations)
- Poole, Franklin O. "Foreign Law Books—How to Secure Them." Law Library Journal 8 (1916): 69–71.
- Pratter, Jonathan. "Treaty Research Basics." Law Library Journal 89 (1997): 407–13.
- Price, Kathleen M. "Building a National Law Library to Serve the World Legal Community." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 225–33.
- Price, Miles O. "Noting Up British Statutes and Cases." Law Library Journal 40 (1947): 251–70.
- Reynolds, Thomas H. "Clouds of Codes: The New International Economic Order through Codes of Conduct: A Survey." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 315–54. (2 citations)
- Reynolds, Thomas H. "Foreign Commercial Legislation in English." Law Library Journal 69 (1976): 41–59.
- Reynolds, Thomas H. "Highest Aspirations or Barbarous Acts . . . The Explosion of Human Rights Documentation: A Bibliographic Survey." Law Library Journal 71 (1978): 1–48. (1 citation)
- Robbins, Sara, and Gegory E. Koster. "The New York Joint International Law Program Experience." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 783–99. (1 citation)
- Rogers, Ralph V. "The Editing and Publication of the Year Books of the Reign of Edward III (1327–77)." Law Library Journal 44 (1951): 71–78.
- Rogers, Ralph V. "The Need for a Bibliography of English Legal Manuscripts." Law Library Journal 43 (1950): 45–52.
- Rogers, Ralph V. "Reports of Year Book 10 Henry V (1422) Found in a Manuscript Abridgement of Year Books." Law Library Journal 34 (1941): 321–31.
- Rosada, Stefan, and Jozef Gwozdz. "Sources of Legal Information in Poland." Law Library Journal 46 (1953): 120–30.
- Russin, Jonathan. "British Courts and Law Reporting in East Africa." Law Library Journal 56 (1963): 234–46.
- Sass, Stephen L. "Medieval Roman Law: A Guide to the Sources and Literature." Law Library Journal 58 (1965): 130–59. (1 citation)
- Sass, Stephen L. "Research in Roman Law: A Guide to the Sources and Their English Translations." Law Library Journal 56 (1963): 210–33. (2 citations)
- Schaaf, Robert W. "International Organizations Documentation and International Law Collections." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 482–95.
- Schwerin, Kurt. "Foreign Law Selection and Acquisition: Sources and Problems." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 70–82.

- Schwerin, Kurt. "Foreign Legal Periodicals in American Law Libraries—A New Union List." Law Library Journal 59 (1966): 177–204.
- Schwerin, Kurt. "Foreign Legal Periodicals in American Law Libraries—A New Union List." Law Library Journal 54 (1961): 145–64.
- Schwerin, Kurt, et al. "Fifty-Fifth Annual Meeting American Association of Law Libraries: Panel on Foreign Law." Law Library Journal 55 (1962): 311–424.
- Schwerin, Kurt, et al. "Proceedings of the Fifty-Third Annual Meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries: Panel on Foreign And International Law Materials." Law Library Journal 53 (1960): 372–95.
- Schwerin, Kurt, and Igor I. Kavass. "Foreign Law Periodicals in American Law Libraries: 1973 Union List." Law Library Journal 67 (1974): 120–44.
- Scott, Marianne. "Law Libraries in Canada." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 314–22. (1 citation)
- Scott, Marianne. "1970 Statistical Survey of Canadian Law School Libraries and Librarians." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 323–28. (1 citation)
- Seasongood, Murray. "The Second International Congress of Comparative Law." Law Library Journal 31 (1938): 47.
- Shorthouse, Thomas, Mark R. MacGuigan, Balfour J. Halévy, and Marianne Scott. "The Canadian Legal System." Law Library Journal 62 (1969): 365–80.
- Silverborg, Sanford R. "The Arab-Israeli Conflict: A Legal Bibliography." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 12–20.
- Simak, Andrew. "Legal and Ethical Considerations of Mexican Divorces: A Bibliography." Law Library Journal 57 (1964): 241.
- Sinder, Janet. "Irish Legal History: An Overview and Guide to the Sources." Law Library Journal 93 (2001): 231–60. (1 citation)
- Smith, Robert S. "The Laws and Ordinances of the Guild-Court (Consulado) in Spain and America." Law Library Journal 39 (1946): 35–41.
- Smith, Robert S. "The Llibre del Consolat de Mar: A Bibliography." Law Library Journal 33 (1940): 387–96.
- Snyder, Ester Mann. "Guide to Israel Legal Bibliography: Primary Sources." Law Library Journal 70 (1977): 14–29.
- Sprudz, Adolf. "Fundamentals of Foreign Treaty Research." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 458–63.
- Stein, William B., et al. "Latin American Law: A Coming Task for Law Librarians." Law Library Journal 59 (1966): 43–70.
- Stephens, Alan. "Reply to Kearley's 'International Law Book Prices.'" Law Library Journal 88 (1996): 135–37.

- Stern, William B. "Soviet Russian Legal Periodicals: Current or Presumed to Be Current Holdings of Selected American Libraries." Law Library Journal 62 (1969): 40–46. (1 citation)
- Stern, William B. "Comparative Law: The History of the Language Problem and the Use of Generic Terms." Law Library Journal 55 (1962): 300–10.
- Stern, William B. "Worldwide Responsibilities of American Law Librarians." Law Library Journal 54 (1961): 139–44.
- Stern, William B. "A Bibliography of Books and Articles on Mohammedan Law in the English Language." Law Library Journal 43 (1950): 16–21. (2 citations)
- Stern, William B. "Foreign Law Books in American Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 40 (1947): 158–172.
- Stern, William B. "Latin American Law Books in Anglo-American Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 38 (1945): 4–12.
- Stern, William B. "Canadian Court Rules." Law Library Journal 33 (1940): 137–39.
- Suljak, Nedjelko D. "Right to Translate and International Copyright Conventions." Law Library Journal 62 (1979): 47–57.
- Surrency, Erwin C. "Is a Universal Collection of Treaties Feasible? An Appraisal of the U.N. Treaty Series." Law Library Journal 90 (1998): 77–89.
- Surrency, Erwin C. "How the United States Perfects an International Agreement." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 343–56. (2 citations)
- Talpis, Jeffrey A. "The Civil Law Heritage in the Transformation of Quebec Private International Law." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 177–88. (1 citation)
- Thomas, David A. "Introduction to the Symposium on Foreign Legal Databases." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 235–36.
- Thomas, David A. "Introduction to the AALL Oxford Institute on the British Legal System and Law Librarianship." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 637.
- Thomas, David A. "A Bibliographic Overview of Early English Legal History." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 639–47.
- Tice, Beatrice A. "Foreign Official Gazettes: Solving a Collection Conundrum." Law Library Journal 97 (2005): 299–321.
- Topulos, Katherine. "A Common Lawyer's Bookshelf Recreated: An Annotated Bibliography of a Collection of Sixteenth-Century English Law Books." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 641–86. (1 citation)
- Uyehara, G. E. "The Judicial System in Japan." Law Library Journal 8 (1915): 27–30.
- Wajenberg, Arnold, and Danuta Gorecki. "Classification of Roman Law: Problems and a Suggested Classification Scheme." Law Library Journal 74 (1981): 632–41.

- Wallach, Kate, et al. "African Law." Law Library Journal 60 (1967): 1–40.
- Walton, F. P. "Legal Systems of Canada." Law Library Journal 5 (1913): 55–62.
- Weisbaum, Earl. "Domestic Sources of International Law." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 436–41.
- Weisbaum, Earl, et al. "Mexican Law for Norteamericanos." Law Library Journal 68 (1975): 395–420. (1 citation)
- Whisner, Mary. "Learning a Little about the World: Foreign and International Research and Nonspecialist." Law Library Journal 97 (2005): 595–604. (2 citations)
- Whitten, Robert H. "Two Decades of Comparative Legislation." Law Library Journal 2 (1909): 52–57.
- Williamson, Linda. "International Law Librarians. Guidelines for Planning an Exchange." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 727–47.
- Young, Stephen E. "'By Command of Her Majesty': An Introduction to the Command Papers of the United Kingdom." Law Library Journal 92 (2000): 81–90.
- Young, Stephen E. "'Shepardizing' English Law." Law Library Journal 90 (1998): 209–18. (1 citation)
- Yu, Charles Y. S. "China's Law Library—Soochow University Law School Library." Law Library Journal 34 (1941): 65–66.
- Zagayko, Florence Ferner. "Guide to a Basic Library on International Law." Law Library Journal 53 (1960): 118–28.
- Zagayko, Florence Ferner. "International Documentation and Treaty Problems." Law Library Journal 43 (1950): 85–98.

Legal History and Rare Books SIS*

Top Ten (and Then One)

¶1 When the Publications Committee of the LHRB-SIS began the selection process for our recommended list of articles, we decided to follow one clear guideline—illustrate the incredible breadth and depth found in the subjects of legal history and rare books. First we agreed to pick one article from each ten-year period of the Journal, showing both the continuity and fresh thinking of 100 years of scholarship. After that we looked for articles to represent the diverse topics that live and breathe within the larger rubric of “legal history and rare books.” We hope we have picked a wide-ranging list of articles that is not only of academic importance, but lively and engaging as well.<sup>1</sup> Articles are in chronological order.

The Top Ten

Chipman, Frank E. “The Beacon Lights of the Law.” Law Library Journal 2 (1909): 6–10.

Short essays on the lives of Henry Bracton and William Blackstone and their influence on English law.

Parma, Rosamond. “The Origin, History, and Compilation of the Casebook.” Law Library Journal 14 (1921): 14–19.

History of the casebook, from Christopher Columbus Langdell’s first texts at Harvard Law School to the American Casebook Series developed by the West Publishing Company in response to Harvard’s publication efforts.

Klapp, S. D. “The Drama of the Law Library.” Law Library Journal 21 (1928): 42–47.

Describes the wealth of historical information included in texts such as Howells State Trials and the moralizing comments included by the editors in the Newgate Calendars.

Friend, W. L. “A Survey of Anglo-American Legal Bibliography.” Law Library Journal 33 (1940): 1–18.

Historical discussion of legal bibliographies in England and the United States from the first English bibliography in 1671.

Graham, Howard J. “The Rastells and the Printed English Law Book of the Renaissance.” Law Library Journal 47 (1954): 6–25.

---

* Compiled by Glen-Peter Ahlers, Associate Dean for Information Services and Professor, Barry University School of Law Library, Orlando, Florida; Stacy Etheredge, Reference Librarian, University of South Carolina Coleman Karesh Law Library, Columbia, South Carolina; Lucinda Harrison-Cox, Associate Law Librarian, Roger Williams University School of Law, Bristol, Rhode Island; Joni Herbst, Technical Services Law Librarian, University of Oregon, Eugene, Oregon; and Kurt X. Metzmeier, Associate Director, University of Louisville Law Library, Louisville, Kentucky.

1. For an exhaustive annotated bibliography of legal history and rare books articles published in Law Library Journal, see Joel Fishman et al., Bibliography of Legal History Articles Appearing in Law Library Journal, Volumes 1–94 (1908–2002), 95 LAW LIBR. J. 217, 2003 LAW LIBR. J. 13.

Recounts the history of John and William Rastell, lawyers, scholars, and publishers.

Klingelsmith, Margaret Center. "Report of the Librarian on Her Trip to England and the Continent 1910." Law Library Journal 58 (1965): 251–69.

Recounts Klingelsmith's travels to Europe in 1910 to purchase books for the University of Pennsylvania Biddle Law Library on the early sources of American, British colonial, and continental law.

Brock, Christine A. "Law Libraries and Librarians—A Revisionist History; or More than You Ever Wanted to Know." Law Library Journal 67 (1974): 325–61.

Details the history of law libraries from their inception as private collections in the eighteenth century to their status in 1974. Poses questions about the role of law libraries in the future.

Parrish, Jenni. "Law Books and Legal Publishing in America, 1760–1840." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 355–452.

Discusses the history of law book publishing in the United States and provides a lengthy bibliography of American law books published from 1760 to 1840.

Topoulos, Katherine. "A Common Lawyer's Bookshelf Recreated: An Annotated Bibliography of a Collection of Sixteenth-Century English Law Books." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 641–86.

Presents a scholarly review of a sixteenth-century law library. Based on William Rastell's (1508–1565) library.

Hoeflich, Michael H. "Annals of Legal Bibliography: J.G. Marvin." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 333–43.

Explores the importance of Marvin's Legal Bibliography, a milestone in the history of American legal bibliography and bookselling.

And Then One . . .

Cohen, Morris L. "Researching Legal History in the Digital Age." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 377–93.

Professor Cohen surveys the effects of sophisticated digital research techniques and sources on research in American legal history, and in the process leads us all into the twenty-first century.

Legal Information Services to the Public SIS*

Introduction

¶1 As a continuation of the celebration of the centennial volume of Law Library Journal, the Legal Information Services to the Public SIS chose a selective, annotated list of articles from the first ninety-nine volumes of Law Library Journal on the topic of legal reference services to the public. The list, presented in chronological order, reflects librarians' continuing quest to provide effective ways to meet the legal information needs of the public. A survey of Law Library Journal articles for the past 100 years shows an ebb and flow of interest in legal reference services for the public. As early as the first quarter of the twentieth century, librarian authors recognized the importance of meeting the public's need for legal information. On the one hand, librarians recognized that they were dependent on the public for their financial support, and they wished to keep their clientele happy.<sup>1</sup> On a less selfish note, they also saw the importance of having a citizenry who were knowledgeable about legal issues.<sup>2</sup>

¶2 The topic of legal reference services for the public fell off the radar somewhat in the years before the Depression, and it was not until the 1960s that there was a resurgence of interest in this topic as reflected by articles published in the Law Library Journal. Initially, reference services to the public were discussed only incidentally to a discussion of reference services in general.<sup>3</sup> Law librarians' concern for the public patron was just part of their overall concern for providing effective service to their clientele as a whole.

¶3 Over time, however, several specific areas of interest emerged. In the late 1970s, an article by Robin Mills introduced the question of whether librarians might be at risk for malpractice liability resulting from interactions with public patrons. This became one of the most written-about topics within the area of reference services to the public, culminating with several lengthy articles on this topic by Paul Healey. Healey's articles have rebutted arguments by authors raising the specter of reference librarian liability, but narrower aspects of this topic still receive attention from Law Library Journal authors.<sup>4</sup>

---

* Compiled by John Cannan, Assistant Law Librarian, Montgomery County Circuit Court Law Library, Rockville, Maryland, and Ruth S. Stevens, Assistant Professor, Grand Valley State University, Steelcase Library/De Vos Center, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

1. See, e.g., A.H.R. Fraser, The Duty of the Librarian of a University Law Library Towards the Library's Patrons, 4 LAW LIBR. J. 5 (1911); Sumner York Wheeler, County Law Libraries and Their Services to the Community, 10 LAW LIBR. J. 55 (1917-1918).
2. See, e.g., Frederick C. Hicks, Law Libraries and the Public, 6 LAW LIBR. J. 52 (1913); Lawrence Kelly Smoot, The Value of the Law Library to Layman, Lawyer and Legislator, 19 LAW LIBR. J. 2 (1926).
3. E.g., Carleton W. Kenyon, The Mission of the Legal Reference Librarian, 58 LAW LIBR. J. 123 (1965).
4. See, e.g., John Cannan, Are Public Law Librarians Immune from Suit? Muddying the Already Murky Waters of Law Librarian Liability, 99 LAW LIBR. J. 7, 2007 LAW LIBR. J. 1.

¶4 Another significant thread of articles deals with access and service policies for patrons. Allen, Murray, and Snow have tackled the difficult issue of what level of access public patrons should have to law libraries that have other primary constituencies, such as law students and law faculties. Foster also addresses the availability to the public patron of specific library resources, such as interlibrary loan and computer-assisted research.

¶5 Finally, other articles reflect librarians' efforts to protect access to legal information on the part of the public and to improve the delivery of reference services. These articles culminate with Grey's excellent bibliography of legal reference sources and articles by Pettinato and Dyer dealing, respectively, with the Federal Depository Library Program and applying cognitive linguistic theory to interactions with public patrons.

¶6 While there is much new scholarship regarding legal reference services for public patrons, AALL's institutional commitment to protecting public access to legal information dates back many years. Richard Danner's "From the Editor" column, published in the Law Library Journal in 1987, reflects this commitment.<sup>5</sup> In the column, Danner emphasized the importance of law librarians' work with the general public and concluded that:

Certainly, in a year when we are celebrating the bicentennial of our constitution, it is appropriate to consider seriously what responsibilities we have as legal information specialists to improve public access to the law. As information of all sorts becomes more and more complex and access to it more difficult, the need for our expertise will increase. It is appropriate that we share that expertise not only with our professional clientele but also with those members of the public who need it.<sup>6</sup>

Danner's remarks seem prescient when viewed in today's light. They serve as a reminder of the importance of the services law librarians provide to the public and the need for an ongoing commitment to this work.

Articles

Fraser, A. H. R. "The Duty of the Librarian of a University Law Library Towards the Library's Patrons." Law Library Journal 4 (1911): 5-6.

A law librarian with Cornell University, Fraser had these inspiring words about academic law libraries' duty to the public:

Lay inquirers. The librarian must always remember that his library enjoys many benefits from the public, such as exemption from taxation, and the right to the importation of knowledge free of custom charges. He should therefore seek to advance the knowledge of all inquirers by directing them to the particular books where their queries may be answered and also explain to them the difference between the lawyer's and the layman's point of view, and do his best to show them the relative spheres, rights, duties

---

5. Richard A. Danner, From the Editor: Public Access to the Law, 79 LAW LIBR. J. 163 (1987).

6. Id. at 167.

and privileges of persons and things as recognized by the constitution, laws and courts of various countries. The layman, thus aided, is likely to go on his way rejoicing that his country possesses such an institution that seeks to advance his intellectual and material interests, and so gladly contribute to their upbuilding and support (p.6).

Hicks, Frederick C. "Law Libraries and the Public." Law Library Journal 6 (1913): 52–55.

At the time of writing, Hicks was Assistant Librarian of Columbia University. He advocated a greater liberality in granting public access to legal collections. In his view, the public needed legal materials to deal with the issues raised by the social legislation of the progressive movement and "globalization."

Strange, Joanna Gleed. "Library By-Products." Law Library Journal 9 (1916): 72–80.

Strange was with the New York Public Library. She advanced the "novel" idea that libraries should adopt business practices, such as advertising, to become more efficient. For the most part she speaks of eliminating "waste" by-products, but she also makes a call to arms for bringing together libraries and the public in a manner that still resonates today:

I think of one other library by-product. How are we to utilize our waste public? From the library point of view a person is wasted until he "finds" the library. When we remember that no document or book or periodical or clipping or pamphlet is worth anything until it is read, it is obvious that we must get the people and the books together. This same statement has been made in one way or another at every library meeting since the library movement began.

[T]oo small a percentage of our population forms our library clientele. We must have more library patrons. We must have our reference collections used more. Not only must they be used by students. They must be realized as research laboratories for the business man, the man of affairs, the practical man (pp.78–79).

Wheeler, Sumner York. "County Law Libraries and Their Services to the Community." Law Library Journal 10 (1917–1918): 55–60.

Wheeler's article shows that the county law librarian, back during the era of Woodrow Wilson and World War I as now, enjoyed a diverse patron base, the most challenging of whom was the "layman."

It is with the public at large that the interesting and puzzling part of the county law librarian's work reaches its climax, for while the layman does not resort frequently to our library, yet his presence is always more or less felt, and the librarian is constantly aware that it is public money which is supporting his library and that he should serve the layman with the same fidelity that he extends to a member of the bar.

There are, unfortunately, some individuals who expect a law librarian to be a court of last resort upon every known and unknown legal point and who are greatly surprised if he is unable to answer their questions or if he suggests a lawyer's office as the proper place for presenting their inquiries. . . .

Most of our callers are not, however, of this sort, but come into the library for such information as can be readily given . . . and in answering questions in these and many other kindred subjects I believe the law librarian performs a very helpful service to the community (pp.56–57).

Stebbins, Howard L. "The County Library System in Massachusetts." Law Library Journal 14 (1921): 69–78.

Stebbins wrote a paragraph on what he considered the perils of serving the public:

Laymen make comparatively little use of these libraries, but they take up an undue proportion of the Librarian's time and he or she must "use discretion" as Jeff is always urging upon Mutt. Your lawyer, no matter how little he knows, will never go out and say "This is the law; the young lady in the library told me so," but your layman may do this or worse. He is surely entitled to consideration and service, for it is his money that supports the Library, but fortunately, to the lawyer is delegated most of the research work of the community (p.73).

Harris, Arthur M. "The Value of the Law Library to Layman, Legislator and Lawyer." Law Library Journal 18 (1925): 72–78.

Harris was a "Member of Seattle Bar" whose oratory ranged from windy to downright bombastic, but he describes the library's importance to laypersons interested in economics, business, and history.

Smoot, Lawrence Kelly. "The Value of the Law Library to Layman, Lawyer, and Legislator." Law Library Journal 19 (1926): 2–8.

Smoot's article is slightly more accessible than Harris's, and he discussed at length the law library's purpose for the layman:

To give the layman a legal education will not affect the practice of the honest attorney, in fact it will help him. The layman, knowing the general principles of the law, will know his rights; he will know how to present his case to his attorney; he will know how and when to arbitrate, and above all he will know how to deal justly with his fellow-man. For him to know the general principles of law and how to find them in the law books of a law library, will result in a better, stronger and more consistent government with fewer "jack-leg lawyers" sitting around the courthouse door sapping the life, and money, out of the poor and ignorant who, when in trouble, will grasp at any straw that floats by (p.5).

Smoot also suggested that the law library become a source for legal education of the public.

Gardner, Dillard S. "'A Case Like Mine from Georgia': A Note on Legal Research." Law Library Journal 46 (1953): 21–28.

Written by the librarian for the Supreme Court Library of North Carolina, this article deals primarily with the process of answering a legal research question, though the introduction involves the perils of dealing with a pro se patron. An interesting quote from the piece is: "Jurors, it is assumed, know no law; lawyers are required to know some law; laymen are presumed to know the law; only law librarians are expected to know all the law" (p.21).

Kenyon, Carleton W. "The Mission of the Legal Reference Librarian." Law Library Journal 58 (1965): 123–29.

The author, an experienced law librarian, sets out his view of the role of the legal reference librarian and the qualities of a good reference librarian. Unfortunately, this article is now somewhat dated. Other articles listed below are more useful for their portrayals of legal reference work. The one highlight of the article is a list of the traits of the ideal reference librarian found on the last page of the article. This list includes qualities such as literacy, imagination, resourcefulness, enthusiasm, and love for serving people, all qualities that are as important today as they were in 1965.

Allen, Cameron. "Whom Shall We Serve: Secondary Patrons of the University Law School Library." Law Library Journal 66 (1973): 160–72.

This article reports on a survey of the policies of law school libraries regarding admitting patrons other than their own law students. It includes tables summarizing the survey results and a narrative discussion of the results. The article could be of interest to a library in the process of reviewing its access policies. However, the article is limited in scope and, while the author describes the access policies of the libraries surveyed, he does not discuss the relative merits of the various policies that are described in it.

Begg, Robert T. "The Reference Librarian and the Pro Se Patron." Law Library Journal 69 (1976): 26–32.

This anecdotal article examines why people represent themselves in court and discusses issues confronting the librarian who assists a pro se litigant, including unauthorized practice of law. The article casts the pro se patron in a somewhat negative light, although the author does emphasize the librarian's responsibility to make sure that patrons can take full advantage of library resources. A unique aspect is the focus on the patron who is choosing to litigate a matter him or herself rather than on public patrons in general.

Wolfe, Charles B. "Current Problems Facing State Law Libraries," Law Library Journal 71 (1978): 108–14.

Wolfe was Acting State Law Librarian at the Michigan State Law Library. His survey showed that "Increased Demands for Service from Client Groups" was a significant problem for state law libraries. Slightly over half of survey respondents reported problems from the lay public.

"Legal Reference Service: The Delivery Process." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 47–64.

A panel discussion on legal reference services was presented by the Michigan Association of Law Libraries. Of particular interest is Peter Schanck's presentation on "Unauthorized Practice of Law and the Legal Reference Librarian." This reviewed the perennial issue of providing reference assistance without giving legal advice, comparing two vignettes of how to serve a pro se patron.

Mills, Robin K. "Reference Service vs. Legal Advice: Is It Possible to Draw the Line?" Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 179–93.

Mills covers the topics of legal advice, when reference service crosses the line into legal advice, the potential for liability, and suggestions for dealing with nonlawyers.

Leone, Gerome. "Malpractice Liability of A Law Librarian." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 44–65.

Leone notes that law libraries were experiencing increased demands by the public—which he viewed as a new phenomenon—and that this raised concerns of the unauthorized practice of law and malpractice liability.

Allred, Carol B. "Negligence Law for Libraries." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–1985): 195–222.

Allred discusses several theories of negligence that might apply in the public services area of the law librarian profession.

Murray, James M. "Limiting Secondary Patrons' Use of Academic Law Libraries During Exam Periods." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 365–82.

This work builds on the research on access policies done by Cameron Allen in the 1960s and includes the results of a survey on general access policies as well as a discussion of policies on access to law school libraries during exam periods. It also includes a discussion of practical problems involved in enforcing access policies.

Snow, Barbara J. "When Goals Collide: Planning and Implementing a Restricted Access Policy at the University of Michigan Law Library." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 383–400.

Snow provides a case study describing the development and implementation of the University of Michigan Law Library's restricted-access policy. This article is of particular note because of its in-depth coverage of the practical details involved in implementing such a policy.

Crowther, Janet L. "Legal Information for the Public: A Public Library Perspective." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 559–65.

This article should be read by anyone who provides legal reference services at a public library. Although public libraries often have minimal legal collections, the article notes that many patrons come to those libraries for legal information even when specialized law libraries are available in the community. This article is valuable because it provides an honest and critical look at the state of legal reference in public libraries. One of the most important points made is that legal reference questions differ from many general reference questions because they often have no single right or wrong answer. Librarians who work in reference need to understand this so that they do not misinform patrons or overstate the level of services that can be provided by the public library.

Foster, Lynn. "Access to Academic Law Library Services: A Survey." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 741–58.

This article summarizes the results of a survey covering not just access to the library, but also the eligibility of various classes of patrons for different library services. It includes a discussion of policies on circulation, interlibrary loan, access to the Internet, and access to other forms of computer-assisted legal research. It provides a framework for possible future research in this area.

Mosley, Madison, Jr. "The Authorized Practice of Legal Reference Service." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 203–09.

Mosley surveys issues relating to unauthorized practice of law at the reference desk and presents a rationale for providing a more expansive range of legal reference services to members of the general public. He urges librarians not to unduly restrict the assistance they give to patrons who seek legal information because of a fear of engaging in the unauthorized practice of law.

Healey, Paul D. "Chicken Little at the Reference Desk: The Myth of Librarian Liability." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 515–33.

In this AALL award-winning article written while he was a student, Healey traces the origins of librarians' fear of liability resulting from providing legal reference services and examines the potential theories of liability mentioned in library literature. He then demonstrates through a review of existing case law that these potential theories of liability do not apply in the reference context. He further supports his position that librarian liability is a "myth" by pointing out that he could not find any instances in which librarians were successfully sued on the basis of their reference work. This is a must-read article for anyone concerned about this issue.

Healey, Paul D. "In Search of the Delicate Balance: Legal and Ethical Questions in Assisting the Pro Se Patron." Law Library Journal 90 (1998): 129–47.

This article follows Healey's earlier work on the issue of unauthorized practice of law at the reference desk. It presents a thorough and insightful look at issues presented by the pro se patron. The author's focus is on maximizing services to public patrons, and he argues that librarians frequently overstate the risk that legal reference librarians will run afoul of laws governing unauthorized practice of law.

Healey, Paul D. "Pro Se Users, Reference Liability, and the Unauthorized Practice of Law: Twenty-Five Selected Readings." Law Library Journal 94 (2002): 133–39.

Healey has provided a valuable service by surveying the literature on three related topics: liability of reference librarians for professional malpractice, unauthorized practice of law by reference librarians, and laws relating to unauthorized practice. The survey covers articles from 1976 to 2001. Healey prefaces this annotated bibliography by clearly stating his view that there is virtually no risk that a reference librarian will be found liable because of information given during the course of providing reference services. Similarly, he asserts that, while it is theoretically possible that a librarian could engage in unauthorized practice of law while helping a patron, it is extremely unlikely that any librarian would ever be prosecuted for doing so.

Grey, Debbie. "Legal Reference Services: An Annotated Bibliography." Law Library Journal 97 (2005): 537–64.

This bibliography summarizes articles addressing many different areas of law librarianship, including reference and teaching. It includes a good core of articles on legal reference, including reference services to the public.

Cannan, John. "Are Public Law Librarians Immune from Suit? Muddying the Already Murky Waters of Law Librarian Liability." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 7–32.

This article builds on Healey's writings regarding reference liability and examines the specific issue of whether public librarians enjoy immunity from suit. The article provides an in-depth analysis of tort law concepts and discusses how they apply to public librarians. The author concludes that public librarians do, in some circumstances, enjoy immunity from suit, thus making the likelihood of a successful lawsuit against a public librarian arising out of reference activities even more remote.

Pettinato, Tammy R. "Legal Information, the Informed Citizen, and the FDLP: The Role of Academic Law Librarians in Promoting Democracy." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 695–716.

This article discusses the Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP) and stresses the important role that academic librarians play in ensuring access to public documents and information. Pettinato asserts that, "[a]cademic law librarians are specially equipped to ensure that law-related government documents are both accessible and understandable. Because of this, they play a valuable role in democracy by contributing to the ideal of the informed citizen" (p.716). She makes the case that it is important for libraries to continue to participate in the FDLP.

Dyer, Charles R. "The Queen of Chula Vista: Stories of Self-Represented Litigants and a Call for Using Cognitive Linguistics to Work with Them." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 717–56.

The author uses anecdotes from his years working as a reference librarian, including the story of the "Queen of Chula Vista," to illustrate the difficulty of providing effective legal reference services to members of the general public. He examines various aspects of thinking and learning theory that can assist librarians who provide reference services to pro se patrons. This article is significant in that it presents a new way of looking at librarian-patron interactions.

Online Bibliographic Services SIS*

The following articles, presented in alphabetical order, were chosen for their emphasis on library automation through the years:

- Amelung, Richard C. "The Mid-America Law School Library Consortium Catalog on CD-ROM." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 801–12.
- Benemann, William E. "Cataloging of Legal Research Data Bases Using RLIN: A Practicum." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 53–65.
- Boissonnas, Christian M. "The Quality of OCLC Bibliographic Records: The Cornell Law Library Experience." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 80–85.
- Bluh, Pamela. "Barcoding a Library Collection." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 727–36.
- Bluh, Pamela. "Perception Versus Reality: Electronic Data Interchange in the Law Library Environment." Law Library Journal 93 (2001): 269–84.
- Bluh, Pamela. "Striking a Balance: Document Delivery in the Nineties." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 599–608.
- Briscoe, Georgia, Karen Selden, and Cheryl Rae Nyberg. "The Catalog vs. the Home Page—Best Practices in Connecting to Online Resources." Law Library Journal 95 (2003): 151–74.
- Briscoe, Georgia K. "Why Not a Shared Database for Legal Serial Patterns?" Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 465–70.
- Brock, Christine A. "Introduction: Why Networks for Libraries?" Law Library Journal 70 (1977): 54–59.
- Burnett, Stephen L., and Michael J. Petit. "The Use of Microcomputers at George Mason University Law Library." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–1985): 132–45.
- Calk, Jo. "USMARC Self-Defense." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 683–701.
- Dalehite, Michele I. "Vendor-Supplied Automated Authority Control: What It Is and How to Get It." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 117–29.
- Daly, Gail M. "Bibliographic Access to Legal Research Databases Reconsidered." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 192–202.
- Daly, Gail M. "Library-Vendor Cooperation in Cataloging Legal Research Databases: The Minnesota/WESTLAW Experience." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 331–40.

---

* Compiled by Susan Karpuk, Catalog Librarian for Operations, Yale Law School, New Haven, Connecticut, and Andrea R. Rabbia, Technical Services Librarian, Syracuse University College of Law, Syracuse, New York.

- Fay, Robert J. "Full-Text Information Retrieval." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 167-75.
- Fishlyn, Fannie Szathmary. "Geac Computerized On-Line Circulation in University Libraries: Should the Law Library Join the System?" Law Library Journal 77 (1984-1985): 87-99.
- Galligan, Sara. "County Law Library Cataloging by the Minnesota State Law Library: A Ten Year Review." Law Library Journal 86 (1994): 529-40.
- Goldblatt, Margaret A. "Legal Looseleaf Services: A Computer-Based Approach." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 420-26.
- Grossman, George S., Dan F. Henke, and Betty W. Taylor. "Law Library Consortium Data Base Components and Standards Study Group Report." Law Library Journal 70 (1977): 74-84.
- Grossman, George S. "The Totally On-Line Library: Northwestern's Integrated Library System." Law Library Journal 77 (1984-1985): 47-57.
- Jackson, Mary E. "Integrating Document Delivery Services with Electronic Document Delivery Technologies." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 609-18.
- Kauffman, S. Blair. "Planning for Automation: Microcomputers in the Law Library." Law Library Journal 77 (1984-1985): 6-25.
- Kawamoto, Chizuko. "File Analysis for Retrospective Conversion: The Case of the California State Library, Law Library." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 455-67.
- Krause, Margaret Maher. "Look beyond LEXIS and WESTLAW: Other Computer Applications in the Practice of Law." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 575-82.
- Leonard, James. "OCLC's Serials Control Subsystem: Its Suitability to Legal Serials and Continuations." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 403-19.
- Marek, Kate. "Automation in the Private Law Library." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 134-42.
- Marion, Phyllis C. "Technical Services Aspects of Data Base Integration into the Law Library." Law Library Journal 77 (1984-1985): 146-50.
- Matthews, Elizabeth W. "Cataloging Legal Materials On-Line." Law Library Journal 70 (1977): 36-38.
- Matthews, Elizabeth W. "Integrating Remote Computer File Databases into the Collection with Bibliographic Description." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 341-49.
- Matthews, Elizabeth W. "Quality Control for Archival Tapes." Law Library Journal 78 (1986): 711-18.
- Matthews, Elizabeth W. "Uses of OCLC Archival Tapes and Planning for On-Line Catalogs: A Descriptive Survey." Law Library Journal 80 (1988): 651-64.

- Myers, Anne K. "Acquiring Minds Want to Know: Integrating Automated Acquisitions with Other Library Functions." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 479–91.
- Norten, Melanie Nietmann, and Donna Hirst. "Computerized Cataloging in Law Libraries: OCLC and RLIN Compared." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 107–28.
- Paulus-Jagric, Deborah. "Online Law Library Maps." Law Library Journal 98 (2006): 691–702.
- Royle, Mary Anne. "Microcomputers and Law Library Automation: New Directions." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–1985): 104–31.
- Royle, Mary Anne. "Speak Memory: Microcomputers in Law Library Automation." Law Library Journal 74 (1981): 101–20.
- Sandmeyer, Ellen C. "Subject Access to a Bibliographic Data Base for Law and Related Fields." Law Library Journal 70 (1977): 349–59.
- Schriefer, Kent, and Linnea Christiani. "Ballots at Boalt." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 497–512.
- Schriefer, Kent. "Serials Control at Boalt Hall." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–1985): 58–75.
- Selden, Karen. "Linking Globally, Coping Locally: Cataloging Internet Resources at the University of Colorado Law Library." Law Library Journal 92 (2000): 439–57.
- Thomas, David A. "Peaceful Partnerships: Suggestions for Law School Libraries Sharing Local Computer Systems." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–1985): 26–35.
- Thomas, Joseph W. "Cataloging Reform: An Overview for Academic Law Librarians." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 99–111.
- Thomas, Julie A. "Use Study of OCLC Cataloging in an Academic Law Library." Law Library Journal 89 (1997): 31–40.
- Trelles, Oscar M. "Automation in Law Libraries: The State of the Art." Law Library Journal 68 (1975): 209–33.
- Vambery, Joseph T. "The New Scope and Content of Cooperative Cataloging for Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 60 (1967): 244–48.
- Veaner, Allen B. "Approaches to Library Automation." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 146–53.
- Welsh, William J. "Considerations on the Adoption of the Library of Congress Classification." Law Library Journal 61 (1968): 242–47.
- Williams, Leonette M. "Automating with Another Library's Bibliographic Records." Law Library Journal 86 (1994): 169–75.

Wynne, Joseph. "LAMBDA at the University of Virginia Law Library." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–1985): 76–86.

Zick, Kenneth A. "The Impact of Automation on Small and Medium-Sized Law School Libraries." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–1985): 36–46.

Private Law Libraries SIS*

¶1 When Law Library Journal began publication 100 years ago in 1908, corporate legal department and private law firm libraries were in the very early stages of development. Thirty years later, when Elizabeth Finley joined AALL, she was one of two law firm librarians in the Association. By 1961, twenty-two years after she joined AALL, Finley was the first law firm librarian to become AALL president.<sup>1</sup> By 1977 the extraordinary growth in the number of private law firm and corporate legal department librarians resulted in the formation of the Private Law Libraries Special Interest Section.<sup>2</sup> The publication in Law Library Journal of articles specific to private law librarianship follows this same timeline, and our list is presented in chronological order.

“Automation and the Private Law Library.” Law Library Journal 59 (1966): 22–42.

Librarians are increasingly aware of their responsibility to understand the uses of automated equipment and the techniques this equipment requires so that they can begin to adapt them to their library operations. This panel offers three speakers who seek to help listeners gain an understanding of automation as it applies to the private law library.

Harrington, William G., H. Donald Wilson, and Robert L. Bennett. “Mead Data Central System of Computerized Legal Research.” Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 184–89.

The Mead Data Central System of computerized legal research (now LexisNexis) offered a multi-purpose system that could be applied to a number of different fields of library research. This article describes the features of the system for law librarians.

Kulpa, Lorraine. “Corporate Law Libraries—A Profile.” Law Library Journal 67 (1974): 244–58.

General Motors Corporation’s Legal Staff Librarian’s survey demonstrates that corporate legal department libraries have characteristics peculiar unto themselves which distinguish them from law firm libraries.

Begleiter, Ronni F. “Private Law Librarian—A Complete Library Professional.” Law Library Journal 71 (1978): 91–95.

As private law librarians have grown in the past fifty years from a position of relative professional weakness to a position of relative professional strength, so

---

* Compiled by Lucy Curci-Gonzalez, Director of Library Services, Kenyon & Kenyon LLP, New York, New York, and Private Law Libraries SIS Chair 2007–2008, and Kate Springer, Circulation Coordinator, Kenyon & Kenyon LLP, New York, New York.

1. Elizabeth Finley & David S. Mao, Recollections of a Mid-Twentieth-Century Law Firm Librarian, 97 LAW LIBR. J. 565, 567 (2005); FRANK G. HOUDEK, THE FIRST CENTURY: ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF AALL HISTORY, 1906–2005 at 67 (AALL Publ’ns Series No. 75, 2008).

2. See Frank G. Houdek, Frequently Asked Questions about AALL’s First Hundred Years, 98 LAW LIBR. J. 157, 164, 2006 LAW LIBR. J. 6 (discussing the approval of the first seven Special Interest Sections, including the Private Law Libraries SIS, in December 1976).

have their contributions to AALL grown. This article describes many of their contributions to the profession and the Association.

Myers, Mindy J. "Impact of Lexis on the Law Firm Library: A Survey." Law Library Journal 71 (1978): 158–69.

While there are sure to be differences in the way various users have integrated use of computerized retrieval systems such as LexisNexis with use of the law library or the librarian, some trends are developing. A questionnaire was prepared in order to investigate this impact.

Johnson, Beverlee, and Verlinda C. Rose. "New Law Firm Partnership: Administrators and Librarians." Law Library Journal 71 (1978): 279–82.

Discusses the benefits enjoyed from a mutually supportive librarian-administrator relationship.

"Law Librarian as Consultant: Spreading the Law Library Message." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 645–58.

The panelists discuss some of the ways that librarians can be of service to law, to lawyers, and to other librarians in providing the consulting help that so many people need.

Marek, Kate. "Automation in the Private Law Library." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 134–42.

Concludes that the librarian in the firm should be active in both the automation of technical service and of legal research.

Lee, Frank. "Expanding Your Base: The Law Librarian as Records Manager." Law Library Journal 80 (1988) 123–29.

Discusses how, in a time of rapid change in private law firms, librarians can expand their role by becoming involved in records management.

Hambleton, James. "Electronic Technology and the Law Firm Librarian." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 551–54.

Automating the law firm library requires understanding the firm's culture and structure as well as the ability to work with systems personnel and select appropriate software. This article discusses how to do that, as well as providing examples.

Callinan, Ellen M. "Research Protocols in Reference Service: Informal Instruction in Law Firm Libraries." Law Library Journal 82 (1990): 39–59.

Increasingly, attorneys are acquiring practice skills through formal in-house training at their law firms. However, legal research training is more effective at the point of need. Since reference service also occurs at the point of need, it is the logical place for an informal training program based on research protocols.

Jay, Marjorie. "User Manuals for the Private Law Firm Library: Planning, Design, and Development." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 91–108.

Jay discusses the characteristics of user manuals and suggests guidelines for preparation of a law firm library manual. Areas addressed are the planning process, content, organization, writing style, format and design, distribution, revision, and alternative methods of library user instruction.

Craig, Edward L., Jr. "Usage of Nonlegal Databases in Law Firm and Academic Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 705–19.

Craig reports the results of a survey of academic and law firm libraries designed to obtain information on usage rates and other characteristics of nonlegal database searching in the legal community.

Shimpock-Vieweg, Kathy. "How to Develop a Marketing Plan for a Law Firm Library." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 67–91.

Shimpock-Vieweg argues that the importance of marketing is often ignored by law firm libraries. She provides guidelines for formulating a marketing plan, and includes a sample plan for reference.

Tilevitz, Sarah Laidlaw. "Reconciling Space and Access Needs in a Small Law Firm Library: A Modest Proposal." Law Library Journal 88 (1996): 96–120.

This article addresses the problem of how to reduce library overcrowding while continuing to maintain an appropriate level of access to information.

Mackler, Mark, and Michael Saint-Onge. "Sky May Yet Fall on Firm Librarians: A Reply to Chicken Little at the Reference Desk." Law Library Journal 88 (1996): 456–60.

Law firm librarian liability is not a myth. Discusses librarian liability in special libraries, particularly law firm libraries.

"Future of the Law Firm Library." Law Library Journal 89 (1997): 99–149.

Transcript of the AALL Task Force on the Value of Law Libraries Conference, designed to explore several compelling issues relating to law firm libraries: the place of the library within the firm, technology, and outsourcing.

Houdek, Frank G., comp. "Day in My Law Library Life, Circa 1997." Law Library Journal 89 (1997): 157–237.

As part of this compilation, firm librarians Carol Bannen (p.162), Karen Brunner (p.165), Mark Mackler (p.191), and Barbara Cornwell Holt (p.178) describe what they really do at work.

Abrahams, Sharon M. "Librarians Training Lawyers." Law Library Journal 90 (1998): 71–75.

Abrahams offers a framework for librarians to use when developing a program to train lawyers, particularly in the law firm setting.

Nemcheck, Lee R. "Records Retention in the Private Legal Environment: Annotated Bibliography and Program Implementation Tools." Law Library Journal 93 (2001): 7–70.

This article provides a foundation for librarians seeking to understand records retention in the private legal environment, as records management is increasingly a part of a private law librarian's job.

Sanders, Catherine, David Whelan, and Molly Flood. "Feasibility and Viability of the Digital Library in a Private Law Firm." Law Library Journal 95 (2003): 369–81.

The authors conducted a study on the feasibility and viability of the digital library and used information derived from surveys of law librarians, legal publishers, and attorneys. The article provides a snapshot of the current state of the digital library in a law firm setting.

Finley, Elizabeth, and David S. Mao. "Recollections of a Mid-Twentieth-Century Law Firm Librarian." Law Library Journal 97 (2005): 565–74.

Elizabeth Finley, one of the first law firm librarians, describes the development of the Covington & Burling library over twenty years (1943–63). Mao adds to the history with descriptions of the Covington & Burling library both before and after Finley's tenure.

Houdek, Frank G. "Frequently Asked Questions about AALL's First Hundred Years." Law Library Journal 98 (2006): 157–67.

A guide that answers some basic questions about the history of AALL, including the creation of the Private Law Libraries SIS.

Social Responsibilities SIS*

The articles chosen by the Social Responsibilities SIS are presented in reverse chronological order.

Mart, Susan Nevelow. "Protecting the Lady from Toledo: Post-USA PATRIOT Act Electronic Surveillance at the Library." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 449–73.

"The USA PATRIOT Act will, unless amended by legislative or court action, alter the traditional role libraries have played as neutral, private places to investigate the full range of ideas necessary to be an informed citizen of a democracy" (p.449). With this sentence, the author paints the landscape she subsequently fills in with detailed descriptions of how selected provisions of the USA PATRIOT Act impact libraries. These provisions deal with pen register orders, roving wiretaps, and releasing library records to the government. She explains pen register orders in the world of telephones and computers, and highlights the potential danger posed by the government's over-collection of content data when monitoring library computer usage (e.g., web pages, e-mails). She includes commentary from several legislators regarding the possible dangers of this over-reaching legislation and legislative proposals to redress the imbalances. She explores the impact on First and Fourth Amendment protections and the role libraries play in supporting citizens' right to receive information and "remain neutral, private places to investigate ideas" (p.449).

Gerken, Joseph L. "Does Lewis v. Casey Spell the End to Court-Ordered Improvement of Prison Law Libraries?" Law Library Journal 95 (2003): 491–513.

Gerken provides an overview of major cases defining prisoners' right of "access to court" as it relates to prison law libraries and offers a positive strategy for moving forward. He lays the foundation with cases including Bounds v. Smith<sup>1</sup> (delineating the obligation of prisons to provide "meaningful access to the courts" as demonstrated through the provision of a law library or legal assistance) to Lewis v. Casey<sup>2</sup> (limiting Bounds). Gerken explores the subsequent case law and the paradox raised by the requirements of Lewis. He then explores three types of prisoner pro se litigation (federal habeas petition, § 1983 claim, segregated housing) and describes why prisoners need access to legal materials to pursue these claims.

Carter, Nancy Carol. "American Indians and Law Libraries: Acknowledging the Third Sovereign." Law Library Journal 94 (2002): 7–26.

---

* Compiled by Camille Broussard, Director, New York Law School Library, New York, New York; Ann Hemmens, Assistant Librarian for Reference Services, University of Washington Gallagher Law Library, Seattle, Washington; Margaret Butler, Reference Librarian, New York Law School Library, New York, New York; Christine Hepler, Associate Law Library Director, University of Maine Donald L. Garbrecht Law Library, Portland, Maine; and Courtney Selby, Collection Development/Instructional Services Law Librarian, University of Tulsa College of Law, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

1. 430 U.S. 817 (1977).
2. 516 U.S. 804 (1996).

American Indian tribal governments are the third sovereign within our federal system. Although each tribe governs and adjudicates, many in the legal profession are unaware of their governmental powers and the tribal law that emanates from the hundreds of sovereign Indian tribes. This article provides the legal background of tribal sovereignty and explains why enhancing our understanding of tribal primary law is important for law librarians. Carter challenges law librarians to reevaluate the place of these materials within our core collections and to make the collection more accessible through our reference, cataloging, and classification efforts. As noted by Karen Selden in "The Essential Law Library Journal,"<sup>3</sup> Carter's call to action has inspired several projects in both law and general libraries regarding tribal law, including the creation of a new Library of Congress classification schedule due for release in 2008.

Campbell, Leslie M. "Keeping Watch on the Waterfront: Social Responsibility in Legal and Library Professional Organizations." Law Library Journal 92 (2000): 263–85.

In this article, Campbell frames the issues faced by legal organizations, including AALL, as they define their roles and responsibilities in speaking to controversial topics. She provides history and context to the struggles that accompany organizational decisions to take stands on social and political issues. At the 1997 Annual Meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries, the Social Responsibilities Special Interest Section (SR-SIS) sponsored a program titled "Keeping Watch on the Waterfront: A History of Social Responsibility in Legal and Library Professional Organizations." The speakers were Ann Puckett, past chair of the Contemporary Social Problems Special Interest Section (predecessor of the SR-SIS) and past member of the AALL Executive Board; Patricia Glass Schuman, past president of the American Library Association; and George Bushnell, past president of the American Bar Association, who discussed the many challenging internal issues raised by their organizations' social and political activism. Campbell includes excerpts of the speakers' remarks at that program and thus adds an excellent supplement and summation to that program's discussion. This article also recounts the significant contributions the SR-SIS has made to the development of AALL policy and educational programming.

Chandler, Yvonne J. "Why is Diversity Important for Law Librarianship?" Law Library Journal 90 (1998): 545–59.

Dr. Chandler's brief article describes the great diversity of our country and the critical need for legal information professionals to respond to diversity, both by working to increase the diversity of our profession and by designing collections and services for diverse patrons. The article describes the importance of increasing the diversity in the workforce and difficulties with recruitment for both law schools and library schools, and makes suggestions on ways to improve recruitment. Suggestions include creating multicultural curriculums and designing collections and services for diverse populations.

Westwood, Karen. "'Meaningful Access to the Courts' and Law Libraries: Where Are We Now?" Law Library Journal 90 (1998): 193–207.

Westwood provides a brief overview of Bounds v. Smith, which held that a right of access to the courts requires prison authorities to provide adequate law libraries, and Lewis v. Casey, which revisited the definition of “meaningful access.” To guide law librarians as they attempt to provide service that meets the Lewis standard, Westwood includes a selective bibliography in two parts. Part one includes articles, books, and court decisions defining “meaningful access to the courts” in the context of providing law library services in correctional settings; part two addresses the changes to meaningful access under Lewis.

---

3. Frank G. Houdek, The Essential Law Library Journal, 100 LAW LIBR. J. 137, 145 (2008).

Standing Committee on Lesbian and Gay Issues, AALL Social Responsibilities SIS.

“Sexual Orientation and the Law: A Selective Bibliography on Homosexuality & the Law 1969–1993.” Law Library Journal 86 (1994): 1–103.

Originally drafted in response to AALL’s 1987 passage of a resolution urging libraries to acquire legal materials concerning lesbian and gay people in society, this bibliography includes citations to works from the late 1960s through mid-1993.<sup>4</sup> The bibliography incorporates writings on a number of issues including legal status, discrimination, family law, privacy, wills and trusts, criminal law, and education. Additionally, a table of cases is available to assist users in locating discussion of a particular case within the various sections of the bibliography.

Torres, Arturo L. “The Social Responsibility Movement Among Law Librarians: The Debate Revisited.” Law Library Journal 78 (1986): 405–24.

Torres’s work provides an opportunity for librarians to examine the origins and evolution of attitudes toward the social responsibility movements within the profession of librarianship, and particularly law librarianship, in the twentieth century. He specifically chronicles the initiatives undertaken by individuals involved in social responsibility movements within the American Association of Law Libraries. He also carefully reflects on the arguments made by others in the organization who favor a separation between advocacy for social issues and the profession of law librarianship. Torres ultimately calls for continued open discussion in AALL about the place of social responsibility within the profession.

Werner, O. James. “Law Library Service to Prisoners—The Responsibility of Nonprison Libraries.” Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 231–40.

In this article, Werner discusses the state of library services to prisoners and suggests that the courts are struggling with the extent of a prisoner’s right to access legal materials as there are no cases that have addressed this exact issue. Until this issue is directly addressed by the courts, the author argues that the best that can be done is to draw inferences from the cases that involve a prisoner’s access to the courts, arguing that the access to the courts implies access to adequate legal materials. He then takes the reader through several cases that support this assumption. After discussing the case law, the author provides the results of a survey he conducted in an effort to find out what kind of law library service prisoners now receive from nonprison libraries. The first half of the author’s questionnaire dealt with library services to prisons and inmates, while the second half dealt with library experience in servicing them. Included in the article are

---

4. An updated and annotated extension to this bibliography was published by W.S. Hein in 2006 as part of the AALL Publications Series. AM. ASSOC. OF LAW LIBRARIES, STANDING COMMITTEE ON LESBIAN AND GAY ISSUES, SEXUAL ORIENTATION AND THE LAW (AALL Publ’ns Series No. 74, 2006). It covers publications from 1994 to 2005 and is updated quarterly online at <http://www.lgbtbib.org>.

charts that provide a summary of his survey results. Finally, the author provides practical suggestions of what librarians can do to improve library services to prisoners, such as providing interlibrary loan services, and donating advance sheets, superseded volumes of American Jurisprudence, Corpus Juris Secundum, and Martindale-Hubbell's law digests and court information volumes to the prison libraries. In conclusion, the author argues that although the services he suggests are feasible, prisoners need basic legal collections on-site, in the prison libraries, and these libraries will need financial support from all levels of government.

Werner, O. James. "Present Legal Status and Conditions of Prison Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 66 (1973): 259–71.

The author argues that the position of prison libraries has greatly improved in light of the Supreme Court's decision in Gilmore v. Lynch.<sup>5</sup> He then summarizes the procedural history and the legal issues involved in Gilmore, concluding that the importance of Gilmore is that the United States Supreme Court "has accepted the view that prisoners have a constitutional right to an adequate law library, unless an equally effective method of legal assistance is offered them by the prison authorities" (p.259). In so holding, the Court broadened the meaning of access to the courts. The summary of the Gilmore case is followed by the author's analysis of several cases dealing with prison libraries. He then discusses the results of a survey he conducted to determine the present condition of law libraries in state and federal prisons. Based on his survey results, the author concludes that the prison law libraries near the end of 1972 inadequately served the nation's prison population and that this was primarily due to a lack of funding. The author concludes that what the nation's prisoners need is legal services, provided by individuals qualified to counsel them, help draft documents, and represent them in court actions.

---

5. 404 U.S. 15 (1971).

State, Court and County Law Libraries SIS*

Introduction

¶1 The committee members reviewed the articles in Law Library Journal to locate those that were written either by members of SCCLL or by those who would have qualified as members if the SIS had existed at that time. This annotated list includes articles we consider witty, useful, reflective of scholarship, and historically significant.

¶2 When we volunteered to review the articles in Law Library Journal and choose ones we found to be worthy of recommending to the members of SCCLL, we didn't know what we were in for! We were so delighted and impressed that we decided to prepare a bibliography for the SCCLL web site and possibly the newsletter as well. We have learned more about our SIS and hopefully have also highlighted the scholarship of our members. Articles are in chronological order.

Small, A. J. "Library Essentials." Law Library Journal 8 (1916): 77-79.

This is a good article to read when trying to envision the future. Using broad categories such as librarians, ideas and ideals, time and labor-saving devices, readers may find that law library essentials have not changed much over time.

Smoot, Lawrence Kelly. "The Value of the Law Library to Layman, Lawyer and Legislator." Law Library Journal 19 (1926): 2-8.

The author noted that for those libraries that are open to the public, the layperson trying to use the library can present the most challenges. "Is it expedient to educate the layman in the use of law books or should we let him go on in his blissful ignorance?" (p.4) The challenge of the self-represented litigant began earlier than many may have believed.

Wheeler, Sumner York. "County Law Libraries and Their Services to the Community." Law Library Journal 10 (1917): 55-60.

An early look at the types of services a law library should provide to the community at large.

Wire, G. E. "How One Law Library is Administered." Law Library Journal 20 (1927): 3-12.

This is a look at issues faced by the Worcester County Law Library, which was open to the public. Dust was a big problem. "We insisted on water sprinkling or oiling all roadways near the library until they were hard surfaced . . ." (p.6). Other concerns will be more familiar to modern readers.

---

* Selections from volumes 1-25 compiled by Barbara L. Fritschel, Librarian, U.S. Courts Library, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; volumes 26-50 by Betsy A. Viperman, Senior Law Librarian for Public Services, Appellate Division Law Library, Rochester, New York; volumes 51-75 by Joel Fishman, Senior Law Librarian for Public Services, Appellate Division Law Library, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; and volumes 76-100 by Meg Martin, Senior Law Librarian for Public Services, Appellate Division Law Library, Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Gardner, Dillard S. "A Law Librarian's Ten Commandments." Law Library Journal 46 (1953): 235–38.

A timeless homily on the treatment of library patrons. "[B]y ignoring these elementary factors, we are steadily losing more potential good will to our libraries than all of the costly, aggressive public relations activities are building up" (p.237).

Glasier, Gilson G. "History of the American Association of Law Libraries: The Founders and the Early Years, 1906–1929." Law Library Journal 49 (1956): 82–149.

The article recaps the first twenty-four Annual Meetings and highlights founders of the Association.

Graham, Howard Jay. ". . . Be Those That Multiply the Commonweale." Law Library Journal 49 (1956): 363–74.

Graham's article was awarded first prize in the Golden Jubilee Essay Contest. It provides a century-long view of law librarianship.

MacDonald, Harrison M. "History of the American Association of Law Libraries: Up Until Now, 1943–1955." Law Library Journal 49 (1956): 118–27.

This article chronicles the activities of the Association and included highlights from the war years, despite no Annual Meetings during 1943 and 1944. It also notes the lighter side of the conferences for this time period.

Newman, Helen. "History of the American Association of Law Libraries: The Roalfe Plan and the Middle Years, 1930–1942." Law Library Journal 49 (1956): 105–17.

This historical reference article highlights the work of the Annual Meetings beginning with the Silver Anniversary and continuing through 1942.

Engle, Virginia E. "Budgets Need Supporting Data." Law Library Journal 50 (1957): 186–99.

Practical advice that remains useful today on budget planning and control, salaries, cost of materials and operations, and annual reports.

Kenyon, Carleton W. "The Mission of the Legal Reference Librarian." Law Library Journal 58 (1965): 123–29.

Kenyon discusses the philosophical and practical needs of the legal reference librarian in performing his/her duties. His article concludes with a list of traits for reference librarians which are still applicable.

Hecht, Rachel. "Survey of Federal Court Libraries." Law Library Journal 67 (1974): 259–75. Ochal, Bethany. "County Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 67 (1974): 177–234. Pershing, William E., and Laura M. Pershing.

"State Law Libraries and Supreme Court Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 67 (1974): 235–43.

These three articles are the results of a 1973 survey by the authors of each type of law library, updating after twenty years the survey performed by William Roalfe. They provide an overall view of state, court, and county law libraries in the early 1970s.

Nycum, Peter. "Law and Computers: Overview Update 1975." Law Library Journal 68 (1975): 234–53.

Nycum wrote one of the earliest articles on the sources of legal information available when using computerized legal research (Lexis, FLITE, Juris, etc.) and included a bibliography.

Meadows, Judith A. "Where are they Now? The Founding Members of the State, Court & County Law Libraries Special Interest Section of the American Association of Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 50–68.

The story of SCCLL told through the varied careers and interests of the founding members.

Shull, Janice K. "The Library as Storyteller." Law Library Journal 90 (1998): 149–57.

Shull shares with us the unique position we may have as the library's storytellers. She challenges each of us to spread the importance and relevance of what we know and do each day in a way that's easily accessible to all.

Fritschel, Barbara L. "An Index to Special Court Sessions in West's Federal Reporters." Law Library Journal 93 (2001): 109–72.

For researchers who need information about a federal judge, Fritschel's article provides an index to more than 600 special court sessions found in West's Supreme Court Reporter, Federal Reporter, and Federal Supplement.

Cannan, John. "Are Public Law Librarians Immune from Suit? Muddying the Already Murky Waters of Law Librarian Liability." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 7–32.

John Cannan suggests answers to the questions: can librarians be held liable for negligence, and is the profession in danger of having its members taken to court?

Technical Services SIS*

¶1 The list of Law Library Journal articles on Technical Services is divided into four sections: Acquisitions, Cataloging and Classification, Preservation, and Serials. Articles are in alphabetical order within each section.

Acquisitions

- Alford, Duncan E. "Negotiating and Analyzing Electronic License Agreements." Law Library Journal 94 (2002): 621-44.
- Bluh, Pamela. "The Acquisition and Handling of Foreign Legal Serials: The Practical Aspects." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 115-23.
- Bluh, Pamela. "The Winds of Change: Acquisitions for a New Century." Law Library Journal 88 (1996): 90-95.
- Boner, Marian O. "Acquisition of Microforms in Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 66-69.
- Casey, Evelyn M. "Book-Buying in the One-Librarian Law Library." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 62-65.
- Clark, Mae M., and Donna Alsbury. "Back to the Future: Predicting Materials Costs by Analyzing Past Expenditures." Law Library Journal 92 (2000): 147-56.
- Dickson, Lance. "Law Library Book Orders: An Analysis of Current Practice." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 446-50.
- Figueredo, Fernando J. "Acquisition of Latin American Legal Materials: A Burdensome Task." Law Library Journal 64 (1971): 46-51.
- "Getting the Ungettable: Hard to Locate Federal Documents: A Panel." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 659-73.
- Gilliam, Mary Cooper. "The Acquisitions of Out-of-Print and Antiquarian Law Books." Law Library Journal 85 (1993): 385-89.
- Gilliam, Mary Cooper. "Problems in Foreign Legal Acquisitions." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 125-31.
- Goderich, Mario. "Cooperative Acquisitions: The Experience of General Libraries and Prospects for Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 57-61.
- Goldblatt, Margaret A., and Bernard D. Reams. "Cooperative Acquisitions among Law Libraries: A Review." Law Library Journal 77 (1984-1985): 657-65.
- Gordon, Edward M. "Acquiring International Legal Materials: Some Things to Bear in Mind." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 476-83.
- Kearley, Timothy. "International Law Book Prices." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 239-44.

---

* Compiled by the Acquisitions, Cataloging and Classification, Preservation, and Serials standing committees of the Technical Services SIS.

- Kulpa, Lorraine A. "Corporate Law Libraries—A Profile." Law Library Journal 67 (1974): 244–58.
- Lane, Margaret M. "Acquisition of State Documents." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 92–99.
- Leary, Margaret A. "Building a Foreign Law Collection at the University of Michigan Law Library, 1910–1960." Law Library Journal 94 (2002): 395–425.
- Levy, Charlotte L., and Gregory E. Koster. "Starting a Law School Library." Law Library Journal 70 (1977): 290–308.
- Marke, Julius J. "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies. . . ." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 3–13.
- Milunovich, Kent. "Issues in Law Library Acquisitions: An Analysis." Law Library Journal 92 (2000): 203–15.
- Moody, Myrtle A. "Library Administration of Historical Materials, Part I—Acquisitions." Law Library Journal 69 (1976): 314–17.
- Musmann, Klaus. "Acquisitions: Some Functions and Problems." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 28–31.
- Myers, Anne K. "Acquiring Minds Want to Know: Integrating Automated Acquisitions with Other Library Functions." Law Library Journal 83 (1991): 479–91.
- Pershing, Laura M. "Gifts and Exchanges as a Means of Growth of Law Library Collections." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 121–22.
- Pinsleur, Meira G. "Book Selection and Acquisition." Law Library Journal 57 (1964): 31–34.
- Schwerin, Kurt. "Foreign Law Selection and Acquisition: Sources and Problems." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 70–82.
- Taylor, Betty, and William W. Gaunt. "Book Selection and Acquisitions." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 107–20.
- Wallach, Kate. "Problems of Acquisition and Ordering of Foreign Law." Law Library Journal 55 (1962): 365–77.
- Whipple, P. Michael. "Selection of Treatises in Academic Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 78 (1986): 219–41.
- Willis, Paul A. "Tools of Ordering and Acquisitions." Law Library Journal 63 (1970): 32–56.

Cataloging and Classification

- Benemann, William E. "Cataloging of Legal Research Data Bases Using RLIN: A Practicum." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 53–65.
- Berry, W. J. C. "Classification of Law Textbooks." Law Library Journal 1 (1908): 11–18.

- Boissonnas, Christian M. "The Quality of OCLC Bibliographic Records: The Cornell Law Library Experience." Law Library Journal 72 (1979): 80–85.
- Briscoe, Georgia, et al., "The Catalog vs. the Home Page? Best Practices in Connecting to Online Resources." Law Library Journal 95 (2003): 151–74.
- Dalehite, Michele I. "Vendor-supplied Automated Authority Control: What It Is and How to Get It." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 117–29.
- Ellinger, Werner B. "Classification of Law at the Library of Congress, 1949–1968." Law Library Journal 61 (1968): 224–36.
- Evans, Martha M. "A History of the Development of Classification K (Law) at the Library of Congress." Law Library Journal 62 (1969): 25–39.
- Glasier, Gilson G. "Cataloguing Law Books with Special Reference to Cooperative Indexing and Index Cards." Law Library Journal 1 (1908): 50–55.
- Klingelsmith, Margaret Center. "Cataloging According to Legal Principles." Law Library Journal 11 (1918): 79–82.
- Marke, Julius J. "Administrative Law and the Expansion of Class K at New York University." Law Library Journal 42 (1949): 12–21.
- Moylan, Helen S. "Primer on Law Library Cataloging." Law Library Journal 29 (1936): 156–69.
- Price, Miles O. "Selection and Training of Law Catalogers." Law Library Journal 45 (1952): 296–305.

Preservation

- AALL Special Committee on Preservation Needs of Law Libraries. "Preservation Treatment Options for Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 259–79.
- Axtmann, Margaret Maes. "The Role of Commercial Publishers in Preservation." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 619–23.
- Billings, Carol D. "State Government Efforts to Preserve Electronic Legal Information." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 625–32.
- Buckwalter, Robert L. "Preservation of Foreign Legal Materials." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 643–48.
- Clareson, Tom. "Next Steps: Moving Forward on a National Plan." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 649–54.
- Danner, Richard A. "Issues in the Preservation of Born-Digital Scholarly Communications in Law." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 591–604.
- Fessenden, Ann T. "Cancellation of Serials in a Budget Crisis: Technical Problems." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 157–66.
- Lynch, Clifford. "Preserving Digital Documents: Choices, Approaches, and Standards." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 609–17.

Marke, Julius J., et al. "Preservation of Law Library Materials & Disaster Planning: A Panel." Law Library Journal 73 (1980): 831–52.

"Preserving Legal Information for the Twenty-First Century: Toward a National Agenda, March 6–8, 2003, Conference Report, May 2003." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 655–68.

Seo, Hilary T. "Preserving Print Legal Information." Law Library Journal 96 (2004): 581–90.

Serials

Bluh, Pamela. "The Acquisition and Handling of Foreign Legal Serials: The Practical Aspects." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 115–23.

Briscoe, Georgia K. "Why Not a Shared Database for Legal Serial Patterns." Law Library Journal 87 (1995): 465–70.

Brown, Kincaid C. "How Many Copies Are Enough? Using Citation Studies to Limit Journal Holdings." Law Library Journal 94 (2002): 301–14.

Freehling, Dan J. "Cancelling Serials in Academic Law Libraries: Keeping the Collection Lean and Mean in Good Times and Bad." Law Library Journal 84 (1992): 707–24.

Goldblatt, Margaret A. "Current Legal Periodicals: A Use Study." Law Library Journal 78 (1986): 55–72.

Goldblatt, Margaret A. "Legal Looseleaf Services: A Computer-Based Approach." Law Library Journal 75 (1982): 420–26.

Jarvis, Robert M., and Phyllis Coleman. "Ranking Law Reviews by Author Prominence—Ten Years Later." Law Library Journal 99 (2007): 573–88.

Justiss, Laura. "A Survey of Fee-Based Web Subscriptions in Academic Law Libraries." Law Library Journal 95 (2003): 383–409.

Nicely, Marilyn K., Kaye Stoppel, and Richard Amelung. "MAUL: An OCLC Union List of Legal Periodicals." Law Library Journal 76 (1983): 394–401.

Schriefer, Kent. "Serials Control at Boalt Hall." Law Library Journal 77 (1984–85): 58–75.

Shepard, E. Lee. "The First Law Journals in Virginia." Law Library Journal 79 (1987): 33–52.

Sherwin, Rosalie, and Suzanne Picken. "The Creation of COUNSEL: A Consolidated Union Serials List." Law Library Journal 80 (1988): 429–38.

Tice, Beatrice A. "Foreign Official Gazettes: Solving a Collection Conundrum." Law Library Journal 97 (2005): 299–321.

Watts, Tim J. "A Preliminary Examination of the AALL Exchange of Duplicates Program." Law Library Journal 81 (1989): 293–303.