

THE LAW LIBRARY MISSION STATEMENT: SELECTIVE BIBLIOGRAPHY

Compiled by Timothy C. Von Dulm, Graduate Student, University of California at Los Angeles
Graduate School of Education and Information Studies

Preface

A review of the literature suggests successful mission statements are not developed, and do not exist, in a vacuum. Rather, they are an extension of the goals, values and purpose of an institution or organization. They are a result of careful and considered planning and are created as part of an institution's or organization's overall strategic objectives.

This bibliography is structured in accordance with the above-referenced concepts. More specifically, the bibliography is divided into two major sections. Section I provides selected references to materials relating to "Mission Statements" in general. Section II provides selected references to materials relating to "Strategic Planning" and to the "Strategic Management" process as a whole.

For the most part, this bibliography was compiled utilizing materials published from the period January 1, 1994 to December 31, 2003. However, selected older materials directly related to the topic are also included. Broad spectrums of sources from a variety of disciplines were reviewed to generate materials of interest and relevance to academic, public and private libraries. Source materials include books, journals, newspapers, websites and videotapes from the United States, Canada and Great Britain. The following represent the databases, indexes and search engines consulted in producing this bibliography:
