

Differences between USCA and USCS and USC

USCA	USCS	USC
Unofficial version of the United States Code	Unofficial version of the United States Code	Official version of the United States Code
Contains more annotations	Contains selective annotations, avoids repetitive decisions	No annotations
Citations to CJS and West Digest KeyNumbers	Citations to ALR and Am Jur 2d	No Citations
Language is taken from the USC	Language taken from the Statutes at Large	n/a
Court rules are published within the body of the code	Court rules are published in separate volumes	Court rules not included
Does not publish uncodified law	Has separate volumes for uncodified legislation	Does not publish uncodified law
Only cites to court decisions	Citations to administrative agency decisions in addition to court decisions and provides agency procedural rules	No Citations
Cross references to CFR only provided as an annotation in individual sections	Provides a Table of authorities that lists CFR sections	No references to CFR
Constitution with annotations	Constitution with annotations	Constitution without annotations
Smaller books and print	Larger books and print making it easier to read	Very large bulky books
Quarterly supplements	Monthly advance sheets	Usually at least 2 years behind
More detailed index than USC; index to individual titles in addition to overall index	More detailed index than USC; index to individual titles in addition to overall index	There is no separate index to individual titles
Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Federal Rules of Evidence included with Title 28	Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Federal Rules of Evidence are at the end of the set near the index	Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Federal Rules of Evidence included with Title 28